shop of Westminster, who died on Thursday

THE FUNERAL PROCESSION.

The funeral procession will long be remembered in this city as being one of the mos solemnly magnificent witnessed by the present generation. It was headed by 500 priests in tull canonical robes. After the priests came fourteen bishops in the most elaborate eccles-iastical robing, with black capes, ornamented with silver braiding and white mitres. These fourteen bishops were grandly grouped about the front of the high main altar, presenting a most striking picture. Behind them were a number of canons, in the richest mourning vestments, and behind and around and in front of them was a host of choiristers. The singin of the choir and the intoning of the priests wa simply superb and rendered most remarkably harmonious by the grand pealing of the organ.

Charles Santley, the great baritone singer, sang the solos, which were exquisitely ren-

The bishop of Clifton, the Hon. William Clifford, officiated at the requiem mass, assisted by the usual number of deacons and subdeacons.

The bishop of Newport and Menevia, the Right

kev. John C. Hediey, preached the sermon.

He took as his text the second verse of the tenth chapter of the book of the Prophet

In his opening remarks the bishop paid a touching tribute to the late Duke of Clarence, whose death had occurred almost simul-taneously with that of the cardinal, the two plunging England into mourning. The orator proceeded to declare that an era had been closed and a new era opened in the history of Catholicism in England by the death of Cardinal Manning. "Who," he asked, "shall lift the lance fallen from Manning's hands, or wear the armor which Manning bore so long and so bravely? Cardinal Manning was never weary of saying that England and Wales had never rejected the faith, but rather had been robbed of their allegiance to the holy see." The preacher recalled at length the late cardinal's eminent recalled at length the late cardinals eminent services for the poor and in the causes of labor, temperance and other social reforms. He re-gretted that time failed him to adequately set forth even a summary of these distinguished chievements.

Proceeding, he said: "The holy father loved

THE INFLUENCE OF WOMAN.

Woman's influence is feit and seen and yet not always recognized. Men think they rule the universe. The influence of women is not so much recognized because it works less possily. Man is allowed to think he gov erns, while woman is content to know that she does. She leads and drives man with visible yet invisible means. For instance, how many men are influenced merely by a favin the hands of a woman? This fan can be made to invite or repei, to grant speech or de mand silence, to lend grace and add beauty. It is one of the powers that help to rule men. What more grace ful than the fan of ostrich feathers in color to suit a woman's costume? What beauty is better adorned than she with the fan of filmy gauze? But there are fans and fans, nowhere a better collection than at the

ADVIS. AND ADVIS.

Rather amusing, very puzzling but instructive only Rather amusing, very puzzling but instructive only to an infinitesimal degree are many of the advertisements of late, especially those alluding to Wraps. The following claims all appeared in one evening's edition, all about Wraps. Merchant No. 1 advertised Wraps at 15 per cent discount. No. 2 wrote: Cut them deeply, for we would like to sell them all in a day. No. 3 offers 20 per cent discount. No. 4 heads his ad, with Haif-price Sale. No. 5, after some premary remarks, claims that the garments are prac-

W E have only this comment to make: That every advertisement containing an untruth lowers the value of "The Star's" advertising columns, so that, if only from a selfish point of view, we abstain from untruths.

MME. E. STAUFFER

THE LESSON to be learned appears to be as follows: That while it is undoubtedly true that mer-chants are offering wraps at usually low prices, it is evident that the advertisements reflect, as in a mirror, the characteristics of the merchants. Some are prone to exaggeration, others to imagine that they alone are judges of value and thus are liable to deceive unwittingly; others evidently judge their patrons and the years ago are no longer on fast, and rush into print | Mantles, also a beautiful selection of Materials and tralia, tells a remarkable story of his adventures in the South seas. Last May he deserted from an American ship in Sydney and shipped on a hundred-ton schoone and shipped on a hundred-ton schooner for a trading voyage among the islands of the Pacific. Soon after leaving the Australian coast guns were brought up from the hold and White told they were to be sold to the islanders. The vessel carried a crew of fifteen men, commanded by Capt. Colton, a southerner.

Story Told by James White of His Experie in the South Seas. San Francisco, Jan. 21.-James White. stowaway from Honolulu on the steamer Aug

At the first place the vessel touched five young girls were forcibly abducted. The natives pursued in a cance and when near the ship were fired upon, six or eight being killed. The cance was overturned and the rest were devoured by sharks, which swarmed in the water. The cance was overturned and the rest were devoured by sharks, which swarmed in the water. Two weeks later the vessel touched at another island and in a fight with natives one of the crew was killed and the mate's arm broken. Plane for Redistricting Ohio.
Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.
COLUMBUS, OHIO, Jan. 21.—The state legisle ture has been in session just two weeks and stready four separate and distinct bills for relistricting the state for Congress have been offered—all by republican members. It is svidence of the fact that there is a scramble evidence of the fact that there is a scramble among the young republicans of the state to secure for themselves strong republican districts which will send them to Congress. All of these redistricting bills will need to be referred to a committee to be ground down into a general measure that will receive the approval of the majority. It is probable that under the influence of Gov. McKinley's recommendation for fairness in this redistricting work the republicans will not take more than fourteen of the twenty-one congressional districts.

In fact it is altogether likely that the matter will rest just where it is until this legislature shall be no more. It was made a special order for last Thursday, but the republican leaders discovered that the democrats were ready to tack on a rider providing for investigation also of Senator Sherman's election. As the republicans could not afford to oppose this and they did not want to dignify the charges against Senator Sherman by placing them upon exactly the same plane with those against Senator Brice they took the course of referring the matter promptly back to the committee on elections of the house, where it is perfectly well understood it will quietly sleep. derstands the situation of the attempt to oust Rescued in the Nick of Time.

> project, but she did insist on having her rights. Mr. Coleman, however, said there was no public need for such an immense park. What was it for? There was where the trouble came. The commission had taken in property that they did not need and had done it for a purpose. He did not charge any improper motive upon the commissioners, but they had been in-fluenced by those who had interested themselves in securing the passage of this act. The ourpose was obvious. He did not wish to harge any wrong to any one connected in any way with these proceedings. He did know that in a city which was a park itself, which was full of parks, there was no great public need for this improvement.
> "Have you ever seen the map prepared years ago for a park?" inquired Mr. Justice Cox. "think it provided for about 300 acres."

Chief Justice Bingham said that it had been ntimated that the government might take a certain number of these tracts: that the Presi dent might decide that the awards were reason able and that the public good required taking a portion of the land. This raised the question whether this was to be considered as eighty-two proceedings combined in one, and whether each parcel could not be considered as a sepa-

Mr. Coleman said that in the map of this SACRAMENTO, CALA, Jan. 21.—John Howard, region they would see a tract of land on the night watchman at Rio, Vistsolan county, was west side of the park running clear out to Tenshot and killed by a burglar early this morning. ONLY ONE WAY TO TAKE THE PROPERTY.

There was but one way, in his judgment, that the government could take this property now, and that was by means of a new act of Congress. The government certainly could not take the lands without paying in full the awards made by the appraising commission, and they did not have money enough for that. Mr. Justice James inquired if the President counsel could call attention to what the statutes said on this matter.

Mr. Coleman criticised the park act as being unsatisfactory if not unconstitutional. He did not think it was fair that after proceedings, had been had for six months it should remain for one man, the President, who could not review the proceedings, to settle it all with a scratch of his pen. The clause in the act referring to the President said only that the President should decide whether the prices were reasonable.

were reasonable.
Mr. Justice James said that there was one onsideration in this connection. Congress might have intended that after the fair value had been ascertained the President should decide whether it was worth that much to the government for the purposes intended.
"The question of expediency," suggested Mr.

Perry.

Mr. Coleman did not think this suggestion threw any light upon this clause or explained its presence in the act. A NEWSPAPER CLIPPING.

Mr. Coleman read a newspaper clipping containing an opinion of the Attorney General. dated April 10, 1891, in which he said substantially that in case the awards exceeded the appropriation further legislation would be re-quired in order to take the whole tract, but quired in order to take the whole tract, but that the commission could exercise its choice and take and pay for such lands as it deemed best up to the limit of the appropriation. Mr. Coleman read section 3679, R. S., which prohibited any department of the government from involving the government in any cen-tract for future payment of money in excess of appropriations.

The implied contract in the present case, he argued, was void, as it involved a payment in excess of the appropriation. He claimed that the appropriation and the whole proceedings necessarily fell to the ground.

Mr. Coleman then proceeded to consider the testimeny in relation to the value of his client's land, and argued on this subject until recess as 12:30 o'clock.

land, and argued on this subject until recess at 12:30 o'clock.

Mr. Coleman was interrupted after the recess by the proceedings in the Cross case. Then he resumed his argument and occupied the remainder of the session of the court with a consideration of the testimony and argument in support of his contention that the awards were contrary to the evidence.
